the famous "Bolton Choir" of England and performed on several occasions before Queen Victoria.

Through their training and interest in music, the Forties organized one of the first choirs in Heber Valley. The only music in the beginning was an old Sanky and Moody hymnal which Mr. Fortie had brought from Scotland. There was no organ or piano available for accompaniment, so Mr. Fortie would play the cornet and teach choir members the notes, and then play the cornet while the choir sang their numbers.

When Wasatch Stake was organized, Mr. Fortie became the first stake chorister. By this time an organ had been purchased and Jane H. Turner and Mary Bond were trained as accompanists for choirs and other singing.

Another early music leader in Heber was Roger Horrocks who played a bass viol, which he affectionately called his "Baby." Mr. Horrocks accompanied the choir singing, and provided music for many special programs and dances. Other popular musicians in early Heber included "Hen" Walker, Jim Wheeler and Will Murdock who played banjo, violin and accordion, and Robert McKnight, a violinist. Edd Murdock were also popular dance musicians.

In addition to choir singing, music was primarily enjoyed in parties. Orchestras or individual musicians traveled through the valley to play for dances and socials. The music for many

MUSICAL ACTIVITIES

Music had a great impact on the cultural scene in early Heber. While drama had more of a community role, much of the musical endeavor was centered around individual and family performances. However, choirs were organized and performances drew good crowds. The first sacred meeting in the valley featured singing of familiar hymns under the direction of the versatile John Crook. Mr. Crook later organized a choir for singing at the meetings.

Among the early pioneers of Heber were Alexander Fortie and his wife, Rachel. In his native Scotland, Mr. Fortie had been trained as a musician and choir leader, and then he and his wife became members of
